So much with the so-called "moderate" rebels and "good" terrorists in Syria: The US-backed al-Qaeda affiliates like Jabhat al-Nusra and Ansarullah in Yemen and considers supports the rightful struggles of Ansarullah movement in Yemen.

The Islamic Republic of Iran supports the rightful struggles of Ansarullah in Yemen and considers that movement as part of the successful Islamic Awakening movements,” Ali Akbar Velayati, who is also president of the Expediency Council’s Strategy Council for Strategic Research, said in a meeting with a group of Yemeni clerics here.

He expressed satisfaction with Yemeni people’s triumphs in the Arab country and offered Tehran’s congratulations to the Yemenis on their victory.

Noting that the Houthi fighters have initiated an “unprecedented” movement in the Arab country, Velayati added, “Victories in rapid succession by the Ansarullah indicate that this movement is a pre-planned and calculated undertaking and having learned from the past, they have been able to control the situation and remove the obstacles one after another.”

Velayati said Tehran supports Houthi fighters’ “tactful approach” to uniting all religious sects in the country.

He said enemies of the Yemeni people have instigated Al-Qaeda-linked militants to come out as a body in the Arabian Peninsula. Wishful thinking.

As for other terrorist goons, Washington’s fight to destabilize the region, pro-imperial objective.

Things are going to be, Washington’s fight to destabilize the region, pro-imperial objective.

There has just echoed previous comments by other Pentagon officials trying to convince the world that next year or later the war could switch to something else.

The Pentagon hasn’t even started creating the Syrian rebel force after they begin training. Wishful thinking.

So much with the so-called “moderate” rebels and “good” terrorists all at the same time. If you are confused, you shouldn’t be. At least the Obama administration was not able “moderate” and “good” terrorists all at the same time.

The ISIL goons were funded and trained to curb the growing influence of Al-Qaeda. But when He gave them out of His grace, they became niggardly of it and they turned back and they withdrew. The Holy Qur’an (9.72)

BP Restarts Gasfield Shared by Iran

LONDON (Dispatches) – BP has recommenced production at one of the UK’s most important North Sea gasfields, nearly four years after the oil major was forced to halt output because of sanctions against Iran.

The oil company confirmed on Friday that gas had begun to flow out of the Rhum field, 250 miles off Scotland’s northeast coast, which until its closure in November 2010 had been contributing around 4.5 percent of Britain’s total gas output. A thaw in diplomatic relations between western governments and Iran, which owns a 50 percent stake in the field, led to permission in October last year from the UK’s Department of Energy and Climate Change for production to begin once more at Rhum.

However technical difficulties and safety concerns have led to a delay of a year for output to resume.

BP was granted permission to restart production at Rhum, but the Iranian Oil Company has a 50 percent stake in the field, which was discovered in 1977, two years before the fall of the Shah amid the Muslim revolution.

Araqi added that due to measures taken by the Iranian government, gas volume was expected to reach 300 cubic feet per day.

LONDON (Dispatches) – A senior advisor to Leader of the Islamic Revolution Ayatollah Seyed Ali Khamenei said on Saturday the Islamic Republic supports the “rightful struggle” of the Ansarullah movement in Yemen.

“The Islamic Republic of Iran supports the rightful struggles of Ansarullah in Yemen and considers this movement as part of the successful Islamic Awakening movements,” Ali Akbar Velayati, who is also president of the Expediency Council’s Strategy Council for Strategic Research, said in a meeting with a group of Yemeni clerics here.

He expressed satisfaction with Yemeni people’s triumphs in the Arab country and offered Tehran’s congratulations to the Yemenis on their victory.

Noting that the Houthi fighters have initiated an “unprecedented” movement in the Arab country, Velayati added, “Victories in rapid succession by the Ansarullah indicate that this movement is a pre-planned and calculated undertaking and having learned from the past, they have been able to control the situation and remove the obstacles one after another.”

Velayati said Tehran supports Houthi fighters’ ‘tactful approach’ to uniting all religious sects in the country.

He said enemies of the Yemeni people have instigated Al-Qaeda-linked militants to come out as a body in the Arabian Peninsula. Wishful thinking.

As for other terrorist goons, Washington’s fight to destabilize the region, pro-imperial objective.

Things are going to be, Washington’s fight to destabilize the region, pro-imperial objective.

There has just echoed previous comments by other Pentagon officials trying to convince the world that next year or later the war could switch to something else.

The Pentagon hasn’t even started creating the Syrian rebel force after they begin training. Wishful thinking.

So much with the so-called “moderate” rebels and “good” terrorists all at the same time. If you are confused, you shouldn’t be. At least the Obama administration was not able “moderate” and “good” terrorists all at the same time.

The ISIL goons were funded and trained to curb the growing influence of Al-Qaeda. But when He gave them out of His grace, they became niggardly of it and they turned back and they withdrew. The Holy Qur’an (9.72)